Sadie Nash Leadership Project (SNLP) promotes leadership, activism and service among young women and gender expansive youth. This unique program provides a dynamic and intensive learning experience that centers on the achievements of women and gender expansive people of color, the use of role models, service-based learning, community organizing, and independent social justice projects. The program is designed to strengthen, empower, and equip young people as agents for change in their lives and in their world.

By increasing the participation of our young people in social, political, and economic decision making, SNLP seeks to question and redefine the nature of leadership and to promote perspectives and practices that are cooperative, accountable, ethical and effective.
